Thunderstorm Phobias

New Study Finds Thunderstorm Phobias May Be in Dogs' Genes

If your pooch cowers and cries every time summer storms roll in, it may have as much to do with his genes as his upbringing. A recent study published in the July/August 2001 issue of the Journal of the American Animal Hospital Association shows that your dog's breed and previous experiences may affect whether he's afraid of thunderstorms.

A fear of storms is one of the most common phobias in dogs. It can cause them to tremble, whine, drool and retreat to a hiding place. Behaviorists are not yet sure what part of the storm frightens dogs most, whether they're reacting to lightning flashes, thunder, the sound of rain on the roof or even a sudden drop in air pressure or the electrical charge of the air.

To investigate the cause of this phobia, Emily Cornwall McCobb, DVM, Elizabeth A. Brown, DVM, Karen Damiani, and Nicholas H.

Dodman, BVMS, surveyed the owners of 69 storm-phobic dogs over the Internet. They discovered that some breeds may be predisposed to a fear of storms. Herding dogs, such as Collies and German Shepherds, and hounds, such as Beagles and Basset Hounds, seem to be more likely to develop a storm phobia than other dogs. The phobia is also common in sporting and working breeds. The study suggests that this tendency may be explained in terms of the dogs' genetics. For example, herding dogs have been bred to react quickly to stimuli, such as a calf wandering away from the herd, but not to be aggressive. It could be that herding dogs have a strong reaction to the startling noises and flashes of a storm, but they repress any aggressive response to it, causing anxiety.

The JAAHA study also shows that rescued dogs -- dogs adopted from shelters or rescue organizations -- may also be more likely to develop storm phobias. The article suggests that these dogs are more likely to have had traumatic experiences prior to adoption. These kinds of early-life experiences can make dogs more anxious and fearful of the unknown.

Veterinarians and animal behaviorists offer various treatments for storm-phobic dogs. Therapies typically include the development of a behavioral modification plan that focuses on relieving the anxiety associated with the thunderstorm phobia. Veterinarians can also prescribe anti-anxiety or antidepressant medications to help dogs remain calm during storms.

The American Animal Hospital Association is an international organization of more than 22,000 veterinary care providers who treat companion animals. Established in 1933, the association is well known among veterinarians for its high standards for hospitals and pet health care. We are still awaiting Terry-All KC to receive AKC approval for their show date change (moving date to April). They were not able to contact AKC until after their July 1st show was held. DSA wants to piggyback our Local Specialty date with Terry-All.

Meanwhile, Denise has received back the signed contracts from all our judges, except the Working Sweepstakes judge. Brenda Valetta was chosen for this assignment, but to date she has not returned any of Denise's phone calls, therefore Denise will be contacting the alternate judge, Lisa Peterson.

Denise requested a volunteer sign up sheet to be started for this show. This would include people to help with advertising, catalog sales, hospitality. Since the date has not been confirmed, the sign up sheet will be postponed. However, an ad will be placed in the SOG starting with the August issue.

Eleven Sammys (and their owners!) participated in a recent tracking clinic held by Golden Retriever breeder, Deb Ascher. A total of 3 training tracks were included. They were taught how to train your dog. The concepts are simple, but just require a lot of repetition. The dogs did very well. There is interest in conducting another clinic.

Lori Bashor is conducting a 2-day Herding clinic in Windsor, Co, on July 28 and 29. The cost is $100. Please contact Lori in advance at 970-356-9407. Pre-registration is required.

Part of the money may be pulled from the Raffle account since this money must be used by the year end." Motion tabled. The motion will be posted in the newsletter and vote taken at the August meeting.

Motion: "The cost of the Sammy Heritage Day picnic will be funded by the club, instead of a potluck." Motion tabled. The motion will be posted in the newsletter and vote taken at the August meeting. ## Mr. Wolf Little Red Riding Hood is skipping down the road when she sees the Big Bad Wolf crouched down behind a log. "My what big eyes you have, Mr. Wolf.", says Little Red Riding Hood. The surprised wolf jumps up and runs away!!!

Further down the road Little Red Riding

Hood sees the wolf again. This time he is crouched behind a tree stump. "My what big ears you have Mr. Wolf.", says Little Red Riding Hood. Again the foiled wolf jumps up and runs away.

About 2 miles down the road, Little Red Riding Hood sees the wolf again, this time crouched down behind a road sign. "My what big teeth you have Mr. Wolf," taunts Little Red Riding Hood. With that the Big Bad Wolf jumps up and screams...

"Will you get lost?! I'm trying to poop!"

Fortune Teller

Jane showed dogs, and was a real fanatic about it. As the years progressed, she became more and more of a fanatic. One day it occurred to her that Heaven might not have dog shows. She soon became obsessed with this disturbing possibility. It began to interfere with her everyday life.

As a last resort, she went to a fortune teller. The fortune teller asked her, "Why have you come?" Jane blurted out, "Ohh, I just have to know, are there dog shows in Heaven?"

The fortune teller sighed and began to peer into her crystal ball.

Finally she said, "I have good news and bad news," Jane could hardly contain herself. She said, "Ohh please tell me, are there dog shows in Heaven?" The fortune teller nodded and said, "Yes, there are," Jane clapped her hands and began to cry with relief. Then she stopped short and said, "You said there was bad news too. What is it?" The fortune teller shrugged and said, "You are entered this Saturday."
